

Corporate Health Dynamics Street Therapy

What is Statistical Power?

Statistical power is a representation of a population with controlling influence that equals or exceeds 80% over and above one, two or a few individuals in positions of authority, except for the Power of God.

What this proposition suggests is that every human being is playing a part of or apart from our true nature – the Power of God – housed within the Corporate Health Dynamics (CHD) model. The CHD model is a representation of the human body and its dynamics, the epitome of excellence and a perfect example of how any organizational system should conduct his, her or its business.

The CHD model houses the power that puts the entire game plan of life – CHD Street Therapy – into play. Why play? Play is the ultimate expression of human performance and it is our play performance that serves as a source for fun that leads to a force of one with God Almighty. God is happiest when His Children are at play.

We human beings all possess a portion of God's power. However, that power is just on loan. The manner in which we invest that power in our everyday lives will determine the extent to which our personal and professional value systems are aligned or misaligned with our true nature - the Power of God.

When we play apart from our true nature, we give up our power to the streets and wind up playing the game in vain (we play the devil's advocate by default) – as measured by the “Performance Appraisal Indicator (PAI) – Your Blueprint for Personal, Professional and Spiritual Empowerment ‘PLAY’ Book” ©.

When we play a part of our true nature, we uptake our power to therapy and automatically matriculate to higher levels of spiritual consciousness and play the game in God's name – as measured by the PAI.

The two words, “street” and “therapy” serve as an inverse relationship between material values (confounding variable) and spiritual values (restorative variable) respectively. Our purpose on this earth is to invest in the best (the CHD model), play at our best (anything and everything as long as it is therapeutic) and share this quest with everyone else.

We invest in the best by getting the therapy and experiencing the clarity in spiritual health, healing and prosperity. Otherwise, we become victims of the powerful influence of the infamous streets – self-victimization.

Self-victimization is a creation perpetrated and perpetuated by a population of influential power (street influence) who are playing apart from our true nature - the Power of God – housed within the CHD model.

Therapy is the ideal power that perfectly governs our actions, interactions and reactions in every aspect of our lives all through the Power of Play. Most importantly, it is our combined play performance (controlling influence) that determines the extent to which we experience heaven or hell right here on earth based on the values we have all learned to embrace.

The question now becomes, are those values therapeutic or do they leave our spiritual bodies diluted, polluted and convoluted? The latter are characteristics of street influence as opposed to therapy confluence. Therapy confluence is a restorative variable that represents a population with similar values and views coming together in force that support the CHD model.

The force of all power comes from within the spiritual realm of time and space – the CHD model. It is within the CHD model that our spirits reside and where we will always find our true nature. This truth makes CHD the key to our invincibility, and wholeheartedly answers the question, “what is statistical power?”

The definitive answer is the Power of God housed within the CHD model – a common grace we can all embrace for advancing the evolution of human potential in every aspect of our lives, all through the Power of Play.

There is no force greater than the Power of God when we are at play. So, get the “tee” and play along with me!

Playfully Yours,

Oliver Rhodes, M.S., CHD, USN Retired
Certified Playologist, Leadership Dynamics Specialist
Inspirational Speaker, Author